SEPTEMBER

Monday, September 19th, 7:30 p.m.
SALLY PARKS & FRED DAVIS: REFLECTION ON A FREUD-JUNG SYMPOSIUM

On May 21st and 22nd of this year, the second Freud-Jung Symposium was held in San Francisco. Sally Parks and Fred Davis will share some of their reflections on the symposium.

The contributions of Sigmund Freud and Carl Gustav Jung have had revolutionary effects on the theory and practice of psychotherapy and concepts of human development. Both of these innovators attempted to devise effective methods of treatment based on their view of the nature and function of the psyche. Over the years germinal ideas in their writings continue to lead to new directions in clinical work and research.

The May symposium was designed to present an examination of ideas from the Freudian and Jungian traditions concerning the nature of the mind and the conduct of psychotherapy. Speakers discussed a range of issues including concepts of normalcy and psychopathology, the use of dreams in treatment, the nature of transference. The intent of the symposium was to develop clarity about what were the original similarities and contrasts of thought on these topics by both men and how these traditions have expanded over time.

SALLY PARKS is a Diplomate of the Inter-regional Society of Jungian Analysts and a member of the Washington State Clinical Social Workers Association. She is a founding member of the Friends of Jungian Psychology Northwest.

FRED DAVIS is a Diplomate of the Seattle Psychoanalytic Society and Clinical Assistant Professor in Child Psychiatry at the University of Washington Medical School.
