The Hunt for the Purple Fish
or Lesser Known
Goddesses of the Greeks

Lecture by

John Sanford

Friday, January 25, 7:30pm Kane Hall University of Washington $10 members $15 non-members

In the Greek Language there is a word that means "to hunt for the purple fish." But what is the meaning of this hunt? The exploration of the meaning of this mystery will lead us to an investigation of some of the mysterious though lesser known Greek goddesses. We have all heard of Aphrodite, but how about Ate and Aidos? Yet, they are of great importance not only for an understanding of ancient Greece, but also for an understanding of those strange powers that move ourselves and shape our lives.

What Every Jungian Should Know About Gnosticism

Saturday, January 26 10am—3pm Kane Hall Walker Ames Room $40 members

$50 non-members
As Jung began to uncover his ideas about the collective unconscious and individuation, he turned to the ancient teaching known as Gnosticism. In this presentation, John Sanford will describe the origins of Gnosticism, its teachings, its significance for ancient people, its doctrinal disputes with Christianity, and the nature of its connection with Jungian psychology. Time permitting, he will read a small portion of Gnostic literature.

John A. Sanford is the author of 14 books, including The Invisible Partners, The Kingdom Within, and What Men Are Like. He is a certified Jungian analyst and a diplomate in the American Association of Pastoral Counselors. He has a private practice of psychotherapy in San Diego.

Six Week Series:

An Overview of Jungian Psychology

at Cornish North $5 members $8 non-members

This series of six talks offers an introduction to the central concepts of analytical psychology as developed by C.G. Jung. The course will provide a basic understanding of Jungian theory and will delineate methods for activating and facilitating the personal experience of individuation. Participation in the entire series is a comprehensive learning experience, while attendance at single sessions may provide new perspectives for those already familiar with Jung's thought. Each evening event will include maximum time for group discussion.

Myth-telling presentation by Erica Helm Meade Out of Chaos: Creativity & Creation Mvth

Friday, February 15, 7:30pm Cornish North $7 members $10 non-members

Join us for an evening of mythtelling with creators such as Coyote, Star-Maker, Eurynome, and Corn Mother, who tell us of our cosmic beginnings and the origins of sacred things. Poetry and masks enhance this evening of creation myths, which mirror human approaches to the creative process.

Erica Helm Meade is an accomplished poet, storyteller, and psychotherapist in private practice in Seattle. Her written work has appeared in numerous journals and anthologies. She has given over 300 presentations at universities, theaters, arts festivals, and mental health centers.

Lecture by John Radecki The Creation of New Worlds: The Role of Body in Healing the Split Between Spirit and Matter

Monday, February 25, 7:30pm Cornish North $5 members $8 non-members

We will explore what John Radecki calls "the fundamental condition in which we live today; namely, a world in which Spirit and Matter are split." Radecki will attempt to show what complexities face the individual who seeks involvement in healing this split between Spirit and Matter. He will pay particular attention to the psychological effects on the seeker who begins and continues this most demanding task, which "typically takes the seeker into personal experiences that at times are quite disturbing and at others, liberating."

John Radecki lives Kirkland, where he has a private practice. He was born in England but spent most of his time in Australia before coming to the States in 1979. He has a master's degree and extensive training in sociodrama. His continued interest in Jungian psychology began when he entered Jungian analysis while in Australia.

Andrew Samuels
The Mirror and the Hammer:
Depth Psychology and Political Transformation
Friday, March 22, 7:30pm
Kane Hall, University of Washington
$10 members
$15 non-members

The Russian poet Vladimir Mayakovsky wrote in 1920 that "art is not a mirror to reflect the world, but a hammer with which to change it." Samuels believes that depth psychology has to try to do both. The range of this lecture is wide: the Book of Exodus, Machiavelli, the Hermes myth, the Trickster Cycle of the Winnebego Indians, and the theatrical project of Bertolt Brecht. The themes are the resacralization of our culture and a search for the fundamental psychology of liberal democracy and the market economy. "It is a privilege to live in a time of political transformation and my lecture is a celebration of this."

Andrew Samuels is the editor of The Father: Contemporary Jungian Perspectives, and his latest book is The Plural Psyche: Personality, Morality and the Father. He is a training analyst of the Society of Analytical Psychology, London, and is also author of Jung and the Post-Jungians and A Critical Dictionary of Jungian Analysis.

Workshop by Andrew Samuels Fathers

Saturday, March 23, 10am—3pm Graham Visitor's Center, Washington Park Arboretum $40 members $50 non-members

Co-sponsored by the Pacific Northwest Society of Jungian Analysts

In recent years, analysts and therapists have tended to focus on the psychology of the motherchild relationship. There is a shift taking place and more attention is being paid to the relationship of the father. This workshop will focus on the presence, body, and image of the father in family, culture, and psyche. Themes to be explored: being a father; the father and gender identity; the personal and archetypal father; father, daughter, sex; father, son, aggression; father and homosexuality; the literal and the metaphoric father; and the good and bad father.

Depth Psychology and Art: The Example of
Henry James

Friday, April 12, 7:30pm Cornish North $7 members $10 non-members

One doesn't have to be an expert to appreciate how depth psychology and art can be used to see how the power of the unconscious interweaves in the work of an author. The "example" of Henry James will be illustrated with slides of the rich visual material associated with "the most appalling yet most admirable nightmare" of his life. Slides of the dream's setting in the Louvre's Galerie D'Apollon and of the art Henry saw will be featured, including Delacroix, Gericault, and Delaroche. Henry was only 12 and William 14 when they first visited the Louvre. Dr. Asher will also discuss the brothers' relationship and the theme of the "appalling other" in James' dreams and fiction.

Suzi Naiburg Asher, Ph.D., is Executive Director of the C.G. Jung Society of New Mexico and is completing a book entitled The Appalling Other in Henry James. She has presented papers and led seminars for the C.G. Jung Institute of San Francisco, the Association for the Study of Dreams and the European/American Conference on Literature and Psychology.

Depth Psychology and Art: The Work of
Henry James
Saturday, April 13,
10am—4pm
Cornish North
$30 members
$40 non-members

By looking closely at four of Henry James' short stories and at three of his dreams, we will be able to explore the richness of his imagination, his psychological sophistication, and his art. These examples provide ample evidence of the power of the unconscious to demand attention. These stories, like the unconscious itself, harbor appalling and alluring shadow figures. We will come to appreciate the strengths and limitations of James' characters' personalities as they confront unconscious forces. Familiarity with his short stories-"The Last of the Valerii," "The Great Good Place," "The Beast in the Jungle," and "The Jolly Corner"-is recommended. Expertise in literary analysis or Henry James is not required.

Two Monday lectures by Ladson Hinton, M.D.

The meaning of stories and fairy tales will be discussed, considering the symbolic dimensions and general states of human psychology. Grimm's tales, "The Goose Girl" and "The Golden Bird," will be discussed, with amplifications invited by the group.

Ladson Hinton is a graduate and faculty member of the C.G. Jung Institute of San Francisco, and an Associate Clinical Professor of Psychiatry at Stanford. He has lectured and published on fairy tales, the archetype of the fool, and on analytic approaches to mid-life. Dr. Hinton has relocated to Seattle for the practice of analysis and supervision.

Lecture by Puanani Harvey, Ph.D. Shards of the Dreaded Feminine

Friday, April 26, 7:30pm Cornish North

$7 members $10 non-members Via the Greek myths of Medea, Medusa, and Metis, we will consider the affective experience of abandonment, abuse, possession, rage, jealousy, and revenge. How are these obstacles or thresholds to feminine spirituality? Dr. Harvey will explore this subject with the use of slides that will provide image to these "shadow" issues that haunt, torment, and bewitch the sensitive, receptive recesses of the psyche.

Puanani Harvey, Ph.D., is a Jungian analyst and psychologist in private practice in Santa Fe, New Mexico. She has a long-standing interest in the ways in which childhood wounds influence spiritual life.

Workshop by Puanani Harvey, Ph.D. Dreaming the Myth Onward

Sat April 27, 10am—4pm Cornish North $30 members $40 non-members

Jung highlighted the responsibility the individual bears in this task of ongoing creation. Using slides, discussion, and group experiences, we will explore our personal images of integration of the "dreaded feminine."

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE

In a century of discovery, of scientific expansion, of political conflict and catastrophic destruction, one man's voice sounds clearer and clearer.

C. G. Jung entered the inner reaches of the human mind, to touch the human heart. He learned that by honestly facing personal conflicts on the most everyday level, we can confront the deep set spiritual problems of universal human concern.

At a time when others sought precise answers and certainty, he probed into the unknowable mysteries of love and healing.

When so many devoted their genius to creating the means to destroy the world, he went inward on a lonely and dangerous journey, discovering those creative synthesizing forces within the human psyche that might enable the world to survive.

Jung's life, his mission, his voice, and his personal experience are a challenge and a source of illuminating hope in this dark and perilous time.

This newsletter is published three times a year by the C. G. Jung Society, Seattle, a nonprofit educational corporation since 1972. The purpose of the Society is to promote the interest in and an understanding of analytical psychology and the current use of Jungian concepts by contemporary thinkers through lectures, seminars, study groups, and the maintenance of a library. By exploring these viewpoints we hope to better understand ourselves and gain new insights into our relationships, our culture and our world.

Programs are, for the most part, intended for the general public.
