THEME: The New Millennium

James Hollis, Ph.D.

Lecture: Ends, Beginnings,

Apocalypse:

Envisioning the Millennium

Though our calendars are arbitrary dating systems, the sense of ending, of beginning, of closure, completion of cycle, possibly of apocalypse, invites our projections, stokes our fantasies, and occasions large images. What do these thoughts, fantasies, visions tell us about history, about ourselves, about how our psyche works? Jung said every psychology is a subjective confession; thus, our millennialist visions reveal the invisible workings of the unconscious and what directs our lives whether we know it or not. What can reading the millennialist visions tell us about ourselves?

Workshop: Relationships: The Encounter of Self with Other

The quality of our relationships with others can never rise above the quality of our relationship to ourselves. As the level of our personal development can only approximate the achievement of consciousness, so we are inevitably drawn to contract relationships through unconscious processes, projections, and hidden transactions. This workshop will focus on three arenas of relationships: parent-child, which helps form our personality in profound ways, interpersonal, which is often troubled by the unconscious processes of each party, and self-divine, where the journey of the individual soul takes its place in the larger quest for meaning. In these three modalities of relationship our lives play their course, with the only consistent element being the presence of self. Accordingly, we will focus on the questions which we need to ask of ourselves in order to enhance the relationship to self, which may then enhance the relationship to the Other.

James Hollis, Ph.D., is a Zurich-trained Jungian analyst in practice in Houston, Texas where he is also Director of the C.G. Jung Educational Center. He is a training analyst for the Inter-Regional Society of Jungian Analysts. Additionally, he is the author of numerous books; his most recent work is The Eden Project: In Search of the Magical Other, a depth psychological approach to relationships.

Virginia Apperson

Lecture: In Search of the Coniunctio: Finding the Elusive Heroine

Coniunctio, a coming together, a meeting of opposites, a reconciliation. Is it possible? What will it take to enable, support and encourage such a process in a still predominantly patriarchal — thus, non-relational — culture? In this lecture, we will uncover a feminine potential which exhibits the subtleties that too often get squelched in an extraverted, concretizing world. From “The Raven” to Jane Austen, from Colette to the Indigo Girls, we will address a deep hunger in our culture that has not yet been satiated. The challenge is to envision civil rights and equal rights as much as an intrapsychic and interpersonal issue as it has been a political one, to strive for a deep respect and valuing of the Other.

Workshop: Honoring the Tension

Through creative exercises and discussion, we will have an opportunity to look at the opposing forces in our own lives, allowing both sides to speak, trusting that something new can be born from the two.

Virginia Apperson, M.N., R.N., C.S., is a Jungian analyst who has worked in a variety of psychiatric settings ranging from an inpatient adolescent chemical dependency unit to psychiatric consultation-liaison work in an inner city hospital to an outpatient eating disorders clinic. Her interest in finding ways to tap into the depths of her clients’ and her own creative potential drew her to analytical psychology and eventually led her to training at the C.G. Jung Institute in Zurich. She is currently in private practice in Atlanta, Georgia.

Naomi Ruth Lowinsky

Lecture: The Language of Soul: Psychotherapy as a Poetic Form

*my heart woke
to a range and measure
of song
I hadn't known*

— H.D.

Poetry is Psyche’s first language, taking us back to the beginnings of human culture. Psychotherapy can be seen as a recent form of an ancient practice: a sacred space for words; a place to say the unsayable, to name the unnameable, to talk to ghosts and to the gods.

It was Jung’s premise that the realm of the imagination — the place where conscious and unconscious meet — is where psychological transformation begins. In a deep psychotherapy the soul is released from whatever has confined her, to speak in her own native tongue.

The poet H.D. (Hilda Doolittle) gives us an intimate glimpse into this process in her memoir about her analysis with Sigmund Freud.

Workshop: Writing from the Depths

*Remember us the language
from the bottom of it all
low
in sky*

We will devote this day to seeking our own deep language, our native tongue: words that held mana in childhood; words that remember those awful and awesome experiences that shape our lives. Using active imagination and writing exercises, we will seek our personal language of the soul.

Naomi Ruth Lowinsky is a published poet, an analyst member of the C.G. Jung Institute of San Francisco, author of The Motherline: Every Woman's Journey to Find Her Female Roots, and poetry and fiction editor of Psychological Perspectives. She speaks and publishes widely on the feminine and the creative. Her essay on H.D., "Our Lady of the Pomogranate," appeared in the Fall '97 issue of the San Francisco Jung Institute Library Journal.

JPA Announces Annual Its Public Program

Thawing the "Frozen Accidents:" The Archetypal Dimensions of Transference and Countertransference

The Jungian Psychotherapists Association (JPA) of Seattle proudly hosts Beverley Zabriske, Jungian analyst and author, as presenter for a clinical seminar. Ms. Zabriske will explore pivotal developmental moments ("frozen accidents") which manifest as chronic symptomatic patterns in our waking and dreaming lives. Her presentation will also apply Jung's archetypal perspective toward identifying how we speak about and listen to these symptomatic patterns, as well as how to attune ourselves to these dynamics in the transference and countertransference relationships.

Ms. Zabriske, CSW, NCPsyA, is on the faculty of the C.G. Jung Institute of New York, of which she is a graduate, and the C.G. Jung Center of Mexico City. She is an assistant editor of the Journal of Analytical Psychology, and a past president of the National Association for the Advancement of Psychoanalysis. Her published articles include: "Thawing the Frozen Accidents: The Archetypal Dimension of Countertransference," "The Matter of Psyche," "Jungian Ethics," and "Living Myths."

The Jungian Psychotherapists Association is an organization for master's and doctoral level therapists who use a Jungian perspective in clinical work. Once each year, JPA offers a clinical seminar to the depth therapeutic community; this event is open to the public.

Library News

We would like to thank all those who contributed books to the library collection and also to our used book sale. A selection of used books left over from the sale are still available for purchase in the library; come browse during the library's open hours. We are happy to accept donations to the collection or the used book sale at any time. Donations may be put into the book drop opposite Room 345 of the Good Shepherd Center; leave a note on your books if you would like a receipt for tax purposes.

Available for check-out from our library are several books written by two of our fall speakers. Books by James Hollis are The Middle Passage, Tracking the Gods, Under Saturn's Shadow, Swamplands of the Soul, and his newest book, The Eden Project. We have Naomi Lowinsky's Stories from the Motherline: Every Woman's Journey to Find Her Female Roots.

Recent additions to the Kate Millard Memorial Collection include Reality of the Psyche, edited by Joseph Wheelwright; The Mythic Image, by Joseph Campbell, and A Chronological Catalogue of Jung's Writings in German, English, and French, compiled by Juliette Vieljeux.

We want to give a big thank you to Judith Capili for all the work she has done in the past year in staffing the library.

We are looking for members who will volunteer to staff the library and who are willing to make a four-month commitment. Please call and leave your name and phone number if you have any library questions.

Existing shelf space is at a premium. We hope to raise enough money to purchase more custom-built bookcases.

Exercise Your Ingenuity

If you enjoy attending Society events and activities, why not add to your enjoyment by helping out as a volunteer? Take a hint from Laurene Peterson, our publicity chair, who says, "Volunteering exercises my ingenuity."

Being an all-volunteer organization means that a lot of what is provided in member services depends on the concern, effort, and donated time of members themselves. The availability of the library depends on someone to be there to check the books in and out. The refreshments at each event depend on someone picking them up, setting up the table, and putting out the food. The production of this newsletter depends on someone to prepare the layout and deliver it to the printer.

The Society offers this incentive: Volunteers receive a 50% discount on admission to lectures and workshops.

Whether you're looking to exercise your ingenuity, or stretch your budget, the Jung Society can use your skills. Please contact Karen Campbell at (253) 859-1800, Lucretia Devine at (253) 851-5023, or leave a message on the Society's voice mail, (206) 547-3956.

Library Hours

Beginning Sept. 14

Fridays
prior to lectures
and

Saturdays
12:30 PM to 3:30 PM

Closed holidays

The library is located in Room
345 of the Good
Shepherd Center.

Books may be returned to the book drop across
the hall from our
library any time
the Good Shepherd Center
is open, Monday
through Friday,
8:00 AM to 10:00 PM,
Saturday 9:00 AM
to 5:00 PM.

Growing Pains

If you've visited the Jung Society library lately, you will have noticed that the shelves are jam-packed. While this is good news for readers, it is bad news for new book acquisitions. At present, the Society has limited new book acquisitions to only those titles written by our upcoming speakers. Because the library is fast approaching the limit of available shelf space, there simply is no room to put many more new books.

The Society hopes to purchase custom-built bookcases to match the walnut bookcases that were donated by Mary Irby in memory of Kate Millard. Over $500 was raised at the used book sale and auction at the annual meeting in May, and this money will be applied toward the purchase of new bookcases. We would like to raise an additional $1,200, so that the Society may purchase these bookcases. $1,200 comes to a mere $6 donation per member. Donations may be mailed to the Society's office.

Show support for our library by sending us your donation today!

Advisor to the Board

Peter Elting,
Programs

I want to thank the membership for electing me to the presidency of the Jung Society. I am quite enthusiastic about serving my term in this, the Society's, twenty-fifth anniversary year.

The Society has attained its twenty-fifth year, and this fact fills me with awe. I have spent time reading back issues of the newsletter, and browsing through the board minutes as they have been preserved by historian Bunny Brown in the Society's Yearbooks. At the annual meeting, I listened with care to Nancy Alvord's presentation on how she, George Doczi, and others founded the Society in 1973. The Society has seen rough times and smooth, and still it abides, its original mission intact: promoting the the interest in and understanding of Jungian psychology and the current use of Jungian concepts by contemporary thinkers through lectures, seminars, study groups, and the maintenance of a library.

Since the Society has never had any paid staff, it's the dedicated volunteers who are to be credited with its longevity. I thank the volunteers, both past and present, for bringing the Society this far. But there is much to do, and so few to do it. Any skills you can lend to the Society will be warmly welcomed. We are presently seeking two people to fill these board positions: program chair and newsletter editor.

On behalf of the Society, I would also like to thank everyone who participated in making the annual meeting a success, especially Kent and Lucretia Devine for their hospitality. I would like to thank the following donors who contributed to our silent auction: Darlene Hinton for books, wine, a "C.G. Jung" cap, and time spent helping organize the event; Laurene Peterson for handmade jewelry; Lanie Riley, LMT, for the gift certificate for a massage; Suzanne Wagner for two videos about Jung. Thanks also to everyone who contributed books to our used book sale. In all, a little more than $500 was raised, and the board has chosen to reserve this money toward the purchase of custom-built bookcases for our library. Also, Rainier Industries, Ltd. donated a beautiful sign to grace the door of the Jung Society office/Nancy Alvord Library.

At its annual retreat this summer, the board set the following goals: to increase volunteer recruitment, to collect demographic information about our membership, and to revise the Society's bylaws which, after twenty-five years, are outdated.

The twenty-fifth anniversary seems a suitable moment to consider the larger cycles of time. This year our program is forward-looking, with The New Millennium as its theme. Thanks go to Peter Elting and Golda Posey for engaging speakers for the entire year. It promises to be an exciting program. I hope to see you there!

— Karen Campbell
